SYNERGISTIC ROLE OF SELECTIVE HERBAL COMBINATIONS WITH ALLOPATHIC DRUGS AMONG PATIENTS OF CHRONIC DISEASES AND WAY FORWARD FOR COVID-19 PATIENTS

K.P. Sharma

Diabetic patient

This is in continuation of my earlier findings of diabetic male patient on Insulin (See Insulin Patient Case-3). The good news is complete withdrawal of insulin and diabetes is under control after having two allopathic pills and Type1 decoction for two days in week. The patient now enjoys normal life eating one mango/day and HbA1C is 6.6 (July 2020).

The recovery of all Type-2 diabetes patients including those of those on Insulin suggest that herbal formulation either convert insulin in the body to active form or stimulates pancreas to produce more insulin. Present study included both normal and overweight inactive person who responded well to Type-A herbal treatment.
